Joint Public Comment - Items NOT on the Agenda

Mayor McMorris invited public comment.

T'Ana Allen, Deputy City Clerk, noted that Council Chambers had reached capacity, but people were able to participate online, and she read the City Council statement regarding hate speech.

The following members of the public addressed the City Council:

Hala Khan provided background on herself; discussed things that their children were having to hear at school from other children; concern with having to take sides; the need to unite when calling for peace; modeling for children and the community; acknowledging everyone's voice; the fact that calling for a ceasefire should never be controversial; and she asked the City Council to take a stand.

Maria Beg provided background on herself; expressed support for a permanent ceasefire resolution such as other City Councils have done; discussed genocide aided by the United States; she noted that the Muslims and Palestinians in Culver City were hurting; and she asserted that steps taken by Culver City could impact the government on a national level.

Huong Nghien-Eilbek, with one minute ceded by Taylor Vivanco, provided background on herself; discussed her previous engagement with the City Council regarding gun violence; people in the community grieving child deaths in Gaza; the effect of war on children; the term Wounded Child, No Surviving Family (WCNSF); health and human rights violations in the war; number of people killed; normalizing the death of children; the fact that all wars are wars against children; she urged the City Council to agendaize a discussion of a ceasefire resolution in Gaza; noted the need for the community to support each other and come together; and she read the names of four children who had been killed.

Lisa Schultz, with one minute ceded by Leila Ullman, provided background on herself; indicated working in Gaza for the past ten years; discussed losses of people she knows; the arts movement in Gaza; destruction; systematic bombing of schools by Israel; she asserted that the issue was no longer international when tax dollars are diverted from health and housing to drop U.S. made bombs on children; she discussed disregard for international law; the message being sent to children; normalizing horrific violence that will only spread; gun violence; school shootings; and she asked that the City Council put a ceasefire on the agenda.

Noel Braham provided background on the Micheaux Film Festival; asked the City Council to agendize consideration of a marketing sponsorship; reported support from Supervisor Holly J. Mitchell; and, responding to inquiry, he indicated that the event would take place at the Culver City Theater from October 21-27, 2024.

Fawaz Istwani, with one minute ceded by Nicholas Connor, provided background on himself; indicated that they were not present to take sides; noted that the war was going nowhere; discussed senseless killing in the war; the need to do something; he called for a ceasefire and the immediate return of all hostages, including the 10,000 innocent Palestinians being held indefinitely without due process; discussed torturing of civilians; targeting of children; Culver City's desire for peace expressed in October 2023; and he noted that families were being torn apart.

Patrick Godinez acknowledged that Culver City was doing a good job providing housing for unhoused neighbors; discussed the next challenge of addressing substance abuse and mental health disorders; he asked the City Council to agendize consideration of bringing in USC's Street Medicine Team to work directly with Urban Alchemy and other providers to address the safety of the population; discussed potential grants; taxes to pay for services; diversion; and he proposed agendizing consideration of bringing in the DOJ (Department of Justice) program to ensure that clients are well taken care of.

Emily Dibiny, with one minute ceded by Michael Christopher, provided background on herself; discussed her volunteering efforts in Culver City; acting as a terrorist vs. as a community member; loss of family members in Gaza; and she presented photos of friends and family killed in Gaza.

Thea Krizmanich was called to speak but was not in Council Chambers or on Webex.

Shaheen Nassar was called to speak but did not respond.

T'Ana Allen, Deputy City Clerk, noted that Council Chambers had reached capacity, but people were welcome to participate virtually.

Ayman Mahfouz was called to speak but did not respond.

Dr. Kelly Kent, Culver City Unified School District (CCUSD) Board of Education President, spoke on behalf of herself; discussed feedback from the community in support of a ceasefire and release of hostages; honoring the current and historical experience of Palestine and Gaza; feedback regarding the position taken in support of Israel and the release of the hostages; power and privilege; many in the community that would like to hear the City support Palestinians and call for a ceasefire in addition to the release of hostages; intimidation; understanding that those speaking represent only some of the many; and she expressed hope that the City Council would consider agendaizing a more wholistic conversation.

Leah Pressman discussed moving testimony from the community; passing a resolution calling for a ceasefire; the official position of the California Democratic Party; opposition to a ceasefire as a fringe position among Democrats; provisions of the state resolution; authors of the resolution; party unity; and she asserted that for Council Members Eriksson and Vera to oppose agendaizing a resolution would be to radically depart from the express values and position of the Democratic Party.

Kiran Randhawa provided background on herself; discussed her duty as a nurse; duties of Council Members; tax dollars; blockage of humanitarian aid; the effect of calling for a ceasefire; taking a stand for humanity; caring for everyone with equality; the duty to assure safety; Islamophobic hate; signs to Free the Hostages; Palestinian hostages; children being killed daily; and she asked that Culver City call for a ceasefire.

Pitango Tratoush, with one minute ceded Sara Abrahamsson, provided background on himself; discussed the ongoing situation; the need for action from Culver City; the violence in Gaza; the importance of understanding the truth; a ceasefire for the future of the children; the job of the City Council to guide and help residents; and the inability of the City to do their job if they close their eyes.

Matilde Angle indicated ceding their time to another speaker.

T'Ana Allen, Deputy City Clerk, reminded those on Webex to change their name so that staff can see the name on the list or to send a chat message to alert them.

Bineh Ndefru was called to speak but did not respond.

Gary Zeiss discussed an initiative launched by Mayor McMorris and Council Member Puza called Culver City for All; respect for the community; core values; he urged the City not to consider a resolution calling for a ceasefire in Gaza; discussed established Jewish and Muslim communities in Culver City; people on either side of the crisis; concern with advocating for one side over another; neighbors with starkly different perspectives; celebrating the community and diversity; and the divisive nature of making a resolution.

Majed Dakak, Arab American Lawyers of Southern California, discussed the truth; Martin Luther King, Caesar Chavez, and Ghandi; living with the truth in how Council Members vote and messages sent; a community member who reached out to a Council Member about the ceasefire indicating that Culver City has no bearing on international matters; and the resolution passed in October 2023.

Alex Dakhi discussed the previous vote of the City Council to support the state of Israel which contradicts the statements of not engaging in international policy; contradiction funded by local tax dollars; and loss of life funded by tax dollars.

Ron Ostrin, with one minute ceded by Leslie Ostrin, discussed the responsibility for mutual humanity; the fact that no one has condemned Hamas; using innocent civilians as shields; silence as betrayal; support for peace; the tragedy that was knowingly created; he asserted that the matter was not the responsibility of Culver City; discussed normalizing horrific violence; plans of Hamas to destroy Israel; and he proposed peace by looking at each other's humanity.

Al B. asserted that he was a proud Zionist; discussed racist antisemites who want to murder all the Jews disguised as a ceasefire resolution; support for a ceasefire along with the release of all the hostages and disarming Hamas; genocide; burning the American flag; implementing Hitler's plan; Jewish support; and he asked the City Council to pass a resolution in support of Israel.

Marci Baun felt that Culver City was not the place for the national issue; questioned what the passage of a similar resolution by 140 cities had accomplished; asserted that it was not right for a bunch of people to come in and try to push their decision on Culver City; discussed the two groups in Culver City; the diverse City; the feeling that support of a resolution would be divisive; the importance of being a welcoming community; and she urged Culver City not to pass a resolution

Polly Stenberg provided background on herself; expressed support for a ceasefire; discussed genocide funded by tax dollars; and the need for an end to the military bombardment that makes no one safer.

Ronald Davis provided background on himself; discussed bloodshed; justification of the brutality as collateral damage; the cost of war; concern with not taking action for fear of being divisive; not standing against horror; the City Council of Berlin in 1938; and being silent today.

Ivanska Pagan spoke in support of businesses in Culver City; provided background on herself; discussed support for Palestinians and a ceasefire; length of the conflict; concern with killing for killing; destroying lives; she asserted that the Palestinians deserved life and kids that wanted to play and have a future; and she could not understand how the killing could continue.

Alison Furuto was called to speak but was not present in Council Chambers or on Webex.

Jeffrey Cooper provided background on himself; asked the City Council to pass a resolution calling for an immediate ceasefire and permanent peace in Gaza with a mutual exchange of hostages and reinstatement of funding for UN Relief and Works Agency and an end to the U.S. sending arms; asserted that Palestinians and Jews would continue to die if the war continued; expressed opposition to any discriminatory beliefs and actions; discussed government inaction; setting the stage for a polio epidemic; starvation; and a wider and destructive war throughout the world.

Joan Sekler, with one minute ceded by Sherna Gluck, discussed work in Santa Monica to get their City Council to pass a ceasefire in Gaza; Culver City as an international City with Sister Cities; fostering international friendship; the resolution as in keeping with international understanding and peace; other cities that have passed resolutions; and she asked the City Council to do the right thing and pass the resolution.

Conor Proffitt, with one minute ceded by Keith Watabayashi, called for a permanent ceasefire and release of all hostages and unjustly held prisoners; discussed feeling threatened; the diverse community; the need to be free to express opinions without fear of reprisal; those who discuss winning or losing; peace as a win for everyone; support for dialogue with neighbors; freedom to express valid opinions; the importance of dialogue; City Council as the voice for the community; change from the bottom up; the civil rights movement; small actions that pile up to make the government respond; and he asked that the City Council represent citizens and call for a permanent ceasefire.

Stephen Jones provided background on himself; asked the City Council to agendaize a discussion and vote yes on a resolution calling for a durable ceasefire in Gaza and release of all hostages; discussed differences of opinion; shared values; the vote last year to condemn the violence on October 7, 2023; rising above politics and ideology; coming together to stop violence; and affects to residents of Culver City.

Ryan Rilianni, with one minute ceded by Sana Manaie, provided background on himself; asked the City Council to agendaize a ceasefire resolution; discussed destruction of schools and universities in Gaza; hypocritical silence; brave first steps taken by Culver City to protect students and the community; effects of the issue on more people in Culver City than they realize; the need to address the issue rather than sweep it under the rug as has been done since October 7; recognition that pointless bombing only results in death and destruction; and he asked the City Council to hear its residents.

Camilla Huntley, with one minute ceded by Helene Sklar, provided background on herself; asked the City Council to agendaize consideration of a ceasefire; discussed teachers being silenced; students being unable to openly share their feelings; allowing acknowledgement of what is happening in the world; issues affecting the community; showing community members that their voices and opinions matter; City leaders voted in to represent residents; her role as student representative; and she asked that the City Council stop silencing their voices.

Daniel Nickfardjam provided background on himself; discussed the duty of Jews to repair the world; asserted that agendaizing a ceasefire resolution was not an antisemitic act; he noted that the only time he felt threatened as a Jew was from other Jews that he has grown up with; and he asked that the City Council pass a ceasefire resolution.

Samantha Mohammed provided background on herself; discussed the importance of passing a ceasefire resolution and moving in the right direction; and concern that her tax dollars are going toward the killing of her family.

Shaheen Nassar provided background on himself; discussed people murdered in his family; racist violence; fear that his cousin may be among the casualties; the Culver City statement about their commitment to racial equality; silence as support for genocide; violating the commitment to racial equity; tax dollars given to Israel's military; voters who will remember in November; choosing a path away from moral cowardice; and he asked that the City Council agendize consideration of a ceasefire resolution and pass it.

Cynthia Klingelfuss was called to speak but was not present in Council Chambers or on Webex.

Kristen Schroer was called to speak but was not present in Council Chambers or on Webex.

Salma Ibrahim, with one minute ceded by Raelie Loreda, provided background on herself, requested that the City Council agendize consideration of an immediate and permanent mutual ceasefire as has been done by 16 other Southern California cities; discussed the genocide of Palestine; dehumanizing and justifying actions; remembering those lost rather than numbers and percentages; the need to take accountability; and the need to come together to ensure the safety and well-being of everyone.

Tasneem Noor provided background on herself; discussed diversity; feeling safe and welcome in Culver City; 16 cities in Southern California that have passed a resolution in support of an immediate mutual ceasefire; the purpose of the resolution; clarification that they do not have to choose the safety of one group over another; the obligation to answer the question asked by students about killing 40 Palestinians to get one Hamas; the need to explain that Palestinians are people, not terrorists; concern that people are not as upset about children dying as they are; and being seen as a terrorist sympathizer for being sad that children have no safe space to go.

Melissa Sanders expressed agreement with comments made by Gary Zeiss; asserted that Hamas started the conflict; discussed the seemingly one-sided request; her family in Israel; those who want to kill people because they are Jewish; those upset about the use of their tax dollars; she felt it wrong to demand a ceasefire before anything else was resolved; asked the City to do nothing on the international issue; and she asked people to deal with reality and to stop blaming.

Andrea Cohen provided background on herself; discussed worries for her family in Israel; being horrified and distressed with the killing and destruction in Gaza; she felt that Israelis and Palestinians should be allowed to live in safety and peace; noted that there was no "either/or" but rather only both; asserted that the land belonged neither exclusively to Palestinians or Israelis; pointed out that the only way to arrive at peace was through an immediate ceasefire, return of hostages, and of the unlawfully detained prisoners, and for all people of the region to find new leaders who support lasting peace; and she asked that a ceasefire resolution be put on the agenda and passed.

Jared Bailey provided background on himself; asserted that it was imperative to agendize a permanent ceasefire resolution; discussed the morally and ethically correct position; safeguarding the community; increased incidents of anti-Muslim hate crimes; calling for peace abroad and at home; the number of Palestinians massacred in Gaza; and ensuring that peace and safety prevail.

Bryan Sanders, with one minute ceded by Florian Horn Sanders, discussed historical acts of violence and destruction; August 12 as the day of threat to strike again; listening to hatred; he noted that no one wanted war or death; felt the goal should be condemning Hamas; asserted that the Jews were used to Holocaust inversion; discussed slander; apartheid; and he hoped that the City Council would do nothing with the request for the resolution which is another propaganda tool from Iranian jihadists to infiltrate American universities and non-profit organizations.

Sam Shofani, with one minute ceded by Camilla Shofani, provided background on himself; discussed disproportionate bombardment of civilian atrocities; the IDF; morality; ethics; he expressed support for a ceasefire; indicated that he did not support one side over another; discussed the importance of supporting humanity; and he asked the City Council to agendize consideration of a ceasefire.

Lorri Horn asserted that calling for a ceasefire was not problematic, but failure to mention the hostages was; discussed the irony of calling for peace and justice for all but not including all; the fact that louder voices did not mean their suffering was more than that experienced by others; she asserted that the war would have ended months ago if Hamas surrendered and let the hostages and citizens go; felt that rather than calling for a ceasefire, Hamas should be called to let everyone go; and she noted that the Anti-Defamation League urged public officials to keep the highly problematic resolutions that go along with ceasefire resolutions in mind.

Michael Hersh was called to speak but was not present in Council Chambers or on Webex.

Jasmine Delgado provided background on herself; implored the City Council to agendize consideration of a resolution in support of a permanent ceasefire in Gaza; discussed slaughter and dismemberment of children; making history as representatives; profound effects; determining whether Culver City supported the call for peace; a ceasefire as the beginning of negotiations for peace and reparations; stopping the death toll from rising; concern with ignoring the call from constituents for a ceasefire; and showing humanity as global citizens.

Haifaa Moammar indicated being a member of the EHRAC speaking on behalf of herself; noted that cities had always been the heart of change; felt that when cities united in passing ceasefire resolutions they wielded the collective power of their citizens; she extended condolences to every Jewish person in the room and outside for their loss on October 7; asked the City Council to agendize consideration of a ceasefire resolution as a reflection of who they are as a community; indicated being an Arab and a Muslim from Saudi Arabia; and she asked everyone to be kind.

Monica Richardson was called to speak but was not present in Council Chambers or on Webex.

Donna LeBlanc was called to speak but was not present in Council Chambers or on Webex.

Bubba Fish, with one minute ceded by Aaron Lieberman, discussed other city councils that have adopted ceasefire resolutions; support by Democrats and voters across party lines; remarks in support of a ceasefire by Supervisor Mitchell and Kamala Harris; the importance of using your voice; not using grief from the hatred and violence as a justification for more violence; the belief that Jews standing up for Palestinian, Arab, and Muslims are denigrating themselves; bonding with Jewish neighbors over challenging conversations with family and friends; those who want an end to the violence; the belief that all people are created in God's image; finding ways to be better advocates in one's community; and raising voices for brothers and sisters in Gaza and for ancestors and descendants to say never again for anyone.

Mirvette Judeh provided background on herself; discussed the genocide of her people; family members currently imprisoned; the job of everyone to stop a genocide; ceasefire as being for all sides; the number of civilians murdered; the percentage of women and children killed; she questioned what it would take; asserted that every city contributed to the genocide therefore it was a local issue; cited money from Culver City that goes toward genocide; and she wanted the killing of everyone to stop noting that lives were not safer with the continuation of killing.

Joan Davidson was called to speak but was not present in Council Chambers or on Webex.

Elly Levy provided background on himself; spoke in favor of a ceasefire; discussed textbook genocide; the Israeli propaganda machine; the co-genocidal campaign massacre; the argument of self-defense; static manufactured around the resolution; and he asked the City Council to agendaize consideration of the resolution.

Neal Tabachnick expressed gratitude to the Culver City Police Department (CCPD) and appreciation for everyone who showed up to express their views; indicated being against anxiety and suffering; he mourned the loss of children; felt that a ceasefire without a meaningful plan in place was kicking the can down the road; stated that a ceasefire was a victory for Hamas on October 7; he felt that the issue was inappropriate for the forum; and he wanted to see Palestine freed from Hamas.

Pamela Erwin provided background on herself; asserted that once you learn the truth your life changes; provided resources for people to learn more; discussed the Zionist narrative that has taken over America; encouraged people to align themselves with international law and humanity; she read words from Aaron Bushnell who self-immolated; and she asked the City Council to agendaize a ceasefire now.

Joy Rodriguez was called to speak but was not present in Council Chambers or on Webex.

Scott Stevens was called to speak but was not present in Council Chambers or on Webex.

Linda Milazzo provided background on herself; discussed the number of people killed in Gaza; different types of news that people watch; concern that the City Council would have any reservations about voting for a ceasefire; concern with Jews who do not want to stop the holocaust happening in Gaza; she pointed out that Jews didn't own holocaust; she felt that the one happening right now could be stopped and she did not understand why people did not take action to do so; and she asked the City Council to vote to stop what is going on in Gaza.

Reverend Heidi Worthen Gamble provided background on herself; discussed impacts of the terrorist attacks on October 7; grief; condemnation of the attacks and a call for the release of the hostages; horror at the loss of innocent lives in Palestine; Peace USA; teams sent to Palestine who indicate that it is worse than what is being reported; the horrific genocide being committed; the moral compass of the world; the inability to normalize genocide; the importance of action in the United States; and she asked the City Council to consider support of a ceasefire.

Tony Higgins discussed the effectiveness of a resolution by a small city; the number cities in the United States; making progress bit by bit; making a difference by passing a resolution; he indicated that he wanted to see a resolution for a ceasefire, return of the hostages, and a better future for the children on both sides; and he asked the City Council to do their duty by passing a resolution in support of a ceasefire.

David Kairo indicated that he and his neighbors were very concerned by the upcoming development at 5700 Hannum; discussed increased traffic and noise pollution; exacerbation of the already difficult parking situation; impacts to the way of life in the neighborhood; inequality in how different neighborhoods in Culver City are treated; Fox Hills as being the most dense and culturally diverse area in Culver City; putting all of the state required density in Fox Hills; making a walkable neighborhood; businesses that are already in walking distance; single family housing neighborhoods that are allowed to keep the status quo; he demanded that density be spread equally across Culver City; and he proposed that high rise buildings be built along major arteries.

Kayla Shore provided background on herself; indicated that she stood against the genocide of Palestinians by Israel; discussed Jewish tradition; healing; the local issue because of the way taxes are spent; and she asked the City Council to join many other cities to agendize a resolution for a ceasefire.

Joanne Tortorici Luna was called to speak but was not present in Council Chambers or on Webex.

Beth Lane provided background on herself; noted that she had comments for Item A-11; discussed the proposal put in for the Neighbor Traffic Management Plan (NTMP) in 2015; construction that began in in 2021; and she asked the City to accomplish items that have not been addressed.

Ghassan Khoury, with one minute ceded by Jacob Ritter, provided background on himself; indicated being part of the Santa Monica ceasefire resolution; discussed the moral weight of the decision before them; consideration of historic instances of those who stood by and did not speak up about atrocities; harsh judgement of those who do not speak up; alignment with dark forces of history; the continuation of the most documented mass murder of children in our time; fear to speak up; unwavering support of Israel by the government; the will of the people; the agenda of a few people who have been bought by foreign interests; standing on the right side of history; and he asked that the City Council agendize a ceasefire resolution.

Ayman Mahfouz discussed voters; the variety of people who spoke up; failing constituents; taking part in the conflict by posting the sign on Overland; efforts to appease Zionists in Culver City; he noted that there were no sides to the conflict, there was only humanity; asserted that one could not take the side of those who bomb people lining up for food; discussed the need to condemn Hamas and the IDF; those called racist for speaking up for a ceasefire; he expressed hope that the City Council would not be silenced; and he asked the City Council to agendize a resolution in support of a ceasefire.

Estee Chandler, with one minute ceded by Thistle Boosinger, provided background on herself; discussed the most documented genocide in human history; the critical moral challenge; recognizing personal and civic stakes in events that take place around the world; believing in the lived reality of Never Again for everyone; the World Health Organization statement that the people of Gaza are starving to death; the genocide going on; she asserted that nothing could be more Jewish than agendizing and passing a resolution to call for an immediate and permanent ceasefire; and discussed work to save every human life possible.
