Joint Item

Item J-1

(1) Adoption of a Resolution of the City Council Approving the Issuance, Sale and Delivery of Tax Allocation Bonds, (2) Adoption of a Resolution of the Redevelopment Agency Authorizing the Issuance, Sale and Delivery of Tax Allocation Bonds, Approving as to Form and Authorizing the Execution and Delivery of Certain Documents in Connection with Such Bonds and Authorizing other Related Actions, (3) Adoption of a Resolution of the Redevelopment Financing Authority Approving the Execution and Delivery of a Bond Agreement, and (4) Approval of Agreements with Bond Consultants in Connection with the Sale and Issuance of 2011 Tax Allocation Bonds for the Culver City Redevelopment Project.

Jeff Muir, Chief Financial Officer, provided a summary of the material of record.

Councilmember O'Leary invited public participation.

The following members of the audience addressed the City Council:

Cary Anderson discussed special meetings and the number of meetings held in February; notification; alleged incorrect information in the attachments; alternative means of notification; and he questioned where the money would come from to pay for the approved projects if the governor eliminates the Redevelopment Agency.

Meghan Sahli Wells commented on the difficulty for most people to read the 150 page report made available one day prior to the meeting; questioned the rush to build a new parking structure; discussed tax increment monies; and questioned priorities and who would be responsible for the costs if the governor eliminates the Redevelopment Agency.

Egon Monostory asserted that the money was allegedly being taken from schools and police in order to subsidize developers and he felt that massive fraud would be the cause of the demise of redevelopment agencies.

Item J-1

Tony Pappas discussed the elimination of redevelopment agencies; asserted that there were allegedly major errors in the document; discussed different types of bonds; requirements and obligations for lawyers; and he expressed concern with whether the meeting had been noticed properly.

Discussion ensued between the City Council and staff regarding the source and amount of tax increment coming to the Redevelopment Agency; clarification that if the legislature eliminates redevelopment, bonded indebtedness will be grandfathered and tax increment would continue to come to Culver City to pay that indebtedness; clarification regarding projects and dollar amounts attributed to those projects; clarification that the parking structures are stand alone projects also used as a method to leverage private reinvestments; efforts to grow the Hayden Tract; improving property at Washington/National Boulevards; taxable bond monies; tax exempt monies used for median improvements through the AIP program; and interest rates.

Daryl Street, representing Fieldman, Rolapp and Associates, discussed the rating on the Redevelopment Agency bonds, interest rates, and the current market.

Discussion continued regarding clarification that the bond proceeds will be used to fund the projects and over time tax increment that comes in will be used to pay the debt service on the bonds; the contribution of commercial versus residential; the tax sharing agreement; the portion of the tax increment going to schools; the General Fund; and clarification that if the tax increment does not cover the bond indebtedness the City is not security for the bonds.

Martin Cole, Assistant City Manager/City Clerk, read a statement from Councilmember Malsin indicating his support for the staff recommendation.

Further discussion ensued between the City Council and staff regarding clarification that the action tonight did not preclude or circumvent the public process for the projects; efforts to secure the financing for the projects; the origin of the proposed projects; redevelopment as a tool to incentivize development; clarification that if the bonds were not issued and the projects were not approved the tax increment would be lost to other taxing entities such as the county or the state general fund; the need for public parking; and guaranteeing the tax increment to pay for the parking.
