City of Culver City - City Hall
9770 Culver Blvd.
Culver City, CA. 90232

May 19, 2014

Dear Mayor and Members of the City Council,

On behalf of The Wende Museum, I am writing to respectfully request that the standard $450 per day fee and the special event application fee of $225 both be waived for the installation of the ADN Guardhouse project at Parcel B for two weeks from October 14 through November 2. The Wende Museum agrees to pay all other expenses related to its utilities, installation, and subsequent removal.

This project substantively furthers the Wende's commitment in Section 3A Paragraph 15(B) of their agreement with the City of Culver City to "work cooperatively with other Culver City based arts and cultural organizations to promote the various cultural opportunities in Culver City available now and in the future". The Wende Museum will act in accordance with the above agreement by collaborating with such arts and cultural organizations as Blum & Poe Gallery for the development of the guardhouse as a mobile artist residency site on Parcel B. The intervention of international artist Friedrich Kunath represented by Blum & Poe will distinguish the installation. The Wende will also be working in cooperation with the El Segundo Museum of Art, City of Los Angeles' District 4, The Sister Cities of Los Angeles, Villa Aurora and the Consulate General of the Federal Republic of Germany to bring this important cultural artifact to the City of Culver City.

This year, 2014, is an especially significant moment in which to bring the ADN guardhouse to Culver City as it is the 25th Anniversary of the fall of the Berlin Wall. The ADN Guardhouse is a central piece of the Wende's programming series as mini-exhibition space, exploring themes of media, surveillance, propaganda and the military. These two weeks in Downtown Culver City represent the final final stop for the guardhouse, starting in Berlin and traveling throughout the greater Los Angeles area, before it is permanently installed in the sculpture garden of The Wende Museum's new home at the former National Guard Armory in Culver City. Joining the official 25th Anniversary festivities, the ADN Guardhouse will be a central feature of the Wende's Gala and Community Open House on November 8th and 9th, sponsored by TASHCHEN Verlag, where a live feed and message photo-booth to Berlin Kulterprojekte's installation along the Berlin Wall will forge a trans-Atlantic connection between the United States and Germany.

As in 2009, when the Wende partnered with local and internationally based arts and cultural organizations to launch the "The Wall Project" for the 20th Anniversary of the fall of the Berlin Wall, which drew attention worldwide from local and international media outlets, the ADN Guardhouse and the associated program series will garner significant media and business exposure for the host City of Culver City. In 2009, stories about The Wall Project appeared in The New York Times, Los Angeles Times, The Wall Street Journal, CNN.com, ARTINFO.com, The Independent (United Kingdom), Die Zeit (Germany), and Der Spiegel (Germany), among an estimated 1,022 print articles and online journals from more than 23 countries around the world. LA Inc., The Los Angeles Convention and Visitors Bureau, also calculated that $2.22 million in ad revenue related to the Wall Project was generated between November 7 and 13, 2009. We expect even greater interest for this year's 25th Anniversary festivities through this program series, our synchronized efforts with Berlin Kulturprojekte's and by leveraging our 2009 successes.

The City of Culver City will have a pivotal role in this project by waiving the per day fee and the special event fee for this exciting installation that brings the arts, cultural, and historical spotlight to the heart of the Wende's hometown, Culver City and will be fully credited in all publicity. We would be honored to partner with the City of Culver City in bringing this immensely important historical artifact to Culver City. If you have questions, please do not hesitate to contact me at (310) 216-1600 x 311 or at jkim@wendemuseum.org.

Sincerely,

Joanne Kim

ADN Guardhouse at Parcel B – Summary

My installation for the ADN Guardhouse at Parcel B is an opportunity to reimagine a familiar political symbol through a different perspective. I was raised in East Berlin in the 1970s and experienced the collective paranoia that the guardhouse symbolizes for Germans living in the Communist era. The governing concept of my installation is to take the historical significance of the guardhouse and re-represent it through the lens of my current studio practice here in Los Angeles, where I often play with the fusion of German Romanticism and the aesthetics American pop culture.

The installation entitled, Some power, that hardly looked like power, said I'm only perfect in an empty room, will consist of a sculpted figure that is seated in the guardhouse, watching a monitor that plays footage of captured exotics birds. Here escapism is housed in a structure embedded in political and social anxiety. The absurdity of communism is mirrored playfully in a poetic gesture of a lonesome figure watching birds on a screen, which also harkens back to the reality of rigid border control that was integral to society in Communist Germany.

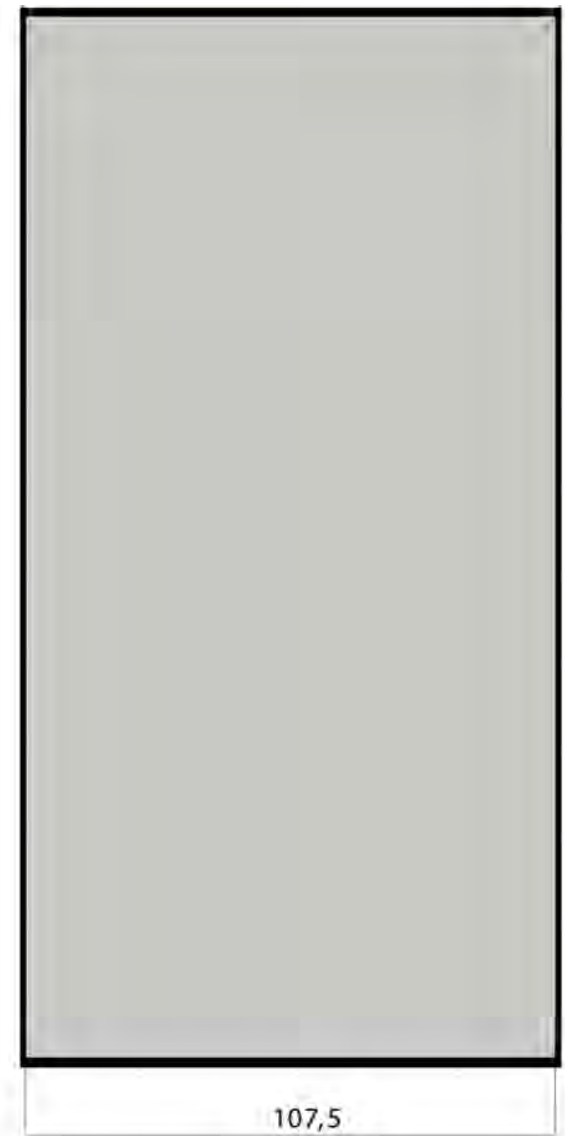

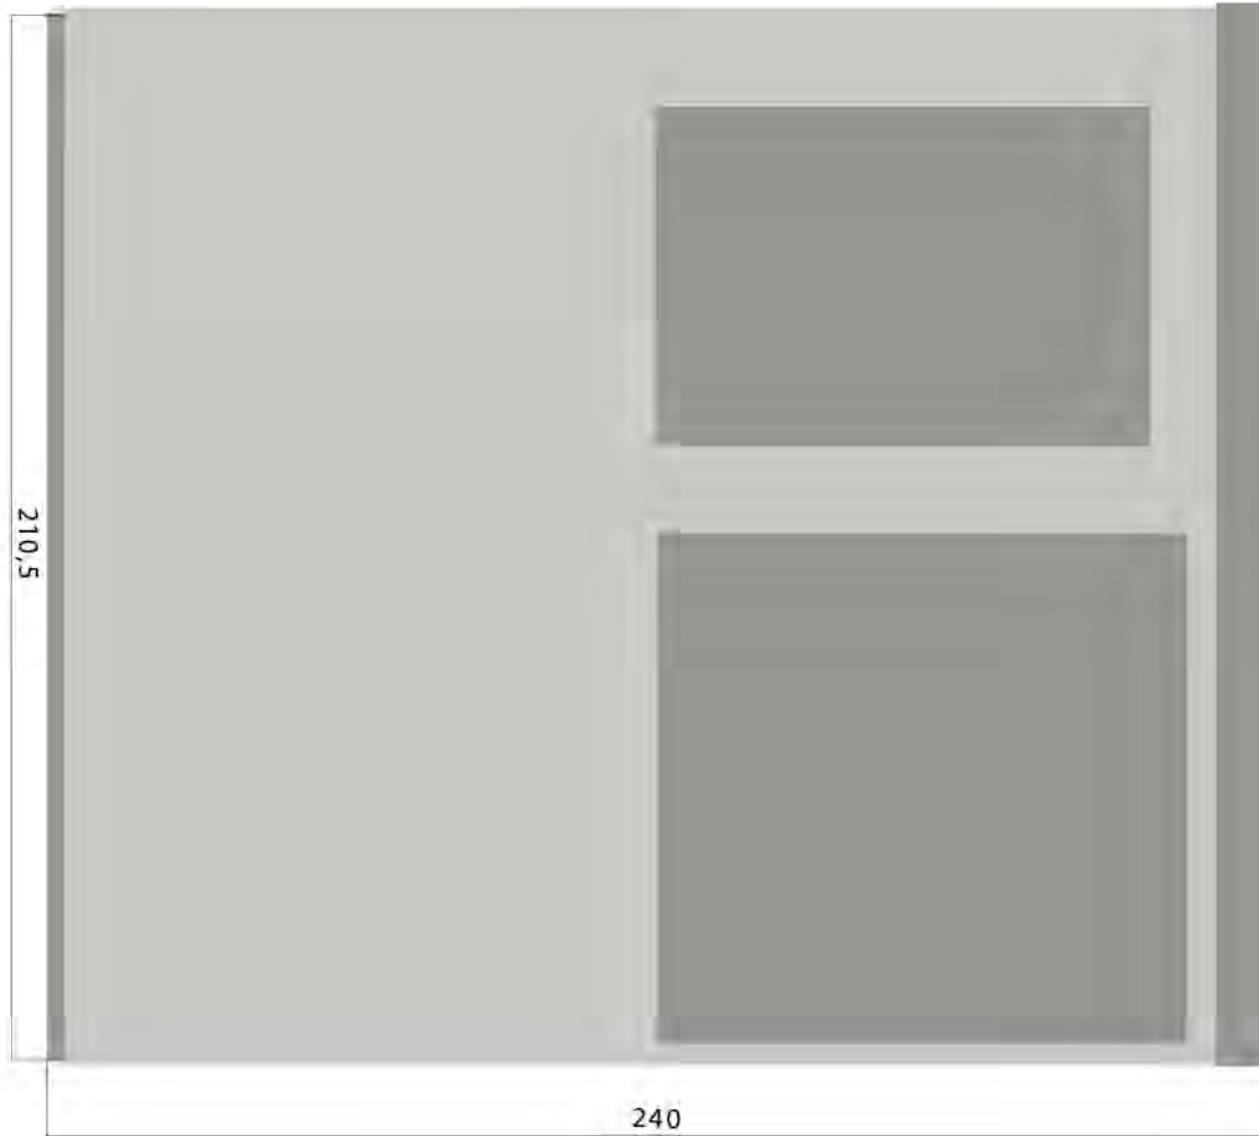

All of the sculptural elements will be produced and provided by me. The installation will be simple: requiring the placement of the sculpted figure one light source and the installation of the monitor. The monitor will also be hooked up to a DVD player, and will require an electricity to power it.

Moving Around Town

Christof Zwiener's Roving ADN Guardhouse Installation and Artist Residency

In collaboration with Berlin and Los Angeles artists Sonya Schönberger and Friedrich Kunath, acclaimed German performance artist Christof Zwiener appropriates a guardhouse from the East German news agency ADN as mini-exhibition space, exploring themes of media, surveillance, propaganda and the military.

On the other side of the Cold War stand-off, America's adversary, the German Democratic Republic (GDR, or East Germany) expended significant resources to counter the NATO Allies' battle for hearts and minds by promoting its own vision of the world. Their ADN (Allgemeiner Deutscher Nachrichtendienst) was the official and only news agency of the GDR, holding a monopoly on all newspapers, radio, and television. From 1971 until its closure in 1992, the ADN headquarters in East Berlin were guarded by a member of the secret service stationed in a prefabricated 20-square-foot aluminum guardhouse that controlled the entrance and exit to the parking lot of the building. One lonely guard watched the largest mouthpiece of the East German communist government at a site that combined media and defense. The site represents an eastern counterpoint to Cold War activities in Culver City, at the time home to film studios and several of the largest U.S. defense contractors.

In the wake of a rush to get rid of a dark past, Christof Zwiener rescued the ADN guardhouse from destruction and transformed it into a mobile residence for invited artists that documents and comments on perpetual social and political changes. Now an art object in its own right, the marginal light-weight structure that had lost its function with the collapse of communism has been presented in several exhibitions in Berlin (www.adn-pfoertnerhaus.de).

At the end of the roving Los Angeles installation, the guardhouse will become a permanent info box and mini-media center in the Wende Museum's sculpture garden at the Armory. It will feature two sets of headphone terminals with audio recordings ranging from historically important news reports to popular music and jazz from east and west. It will be handicap-accessible and will include 15-inch monitors with subtitles for the hearing-impaired.

Audience: Several thousand visitors and participants; all ages, all backgrounds; museum, heritage and art special interest

Summary of Cultural Affairs Commission Comments re ADN Guardhouse Temporary Installation in Downtown Culver City (Item A-1 on August 12, 2014 CAC Meeting Agenda):

- Interesting and exciting project that will hopefully draw visitors to The Wende Museum.
- Support selection of the site in terms of visibility, accessibility and opportunities given the proximity to a film studio, the Culver Hotel and adjacent businesses (including restaurants). The Culver Hotel as having an opportunity to use the guardhouse installation as a promotional vehicle.
- While appreciating the artist's intent for the element of surprise, for the audience's sake, there should be enough information available at the site for the visitor to understand the guardhouse's significance and its journey to Culver City and The Wende Museum. Suggestions included using QR or QT codes and/or making leaflets available. Explanatory language should be clear and concise.
- Consider outreach to adjacent businesses so that they understand the purpose of the installation. Reach out to the DBA in advance with background on the project.
- Consider reaching out the CCUSD about the installation.
- Will there be an opening and/or closing event at the site before relocating the guardhouse to The Wende Museum?
- Will the guardhouse be lit at night?
- What considerations have been made with regard to security for the object?
- Chair Koosed specifically expressed her support of the selection of Friedrich Kunath for the Culver City installation and stated that she is familiar with his work.
