

Student –

Kalia Lowitz

ORIGINAL

The City of Culver City honors you for your contributions to equity and human relations. As a girl scout striving to earn your Gold Award, you planned and implemented a clothing drive out of a desire to ensure that people in need of clothing, such as those served by Culver Closet, local centers and shelters, had a supply of clothing. Culver City is a better place for residents when all people thrive. Thank you for your service.

REVISED #1

Kalia Lowitz, the City of Culver City honors you for your contributions to equity and human relations. As a girl scout striving to earn your Gold Award, you planned and implemented a clothing drive out of a desire to ensure that people in need of clothing, such as those served by Culver Closet, local centers and shelters, had a supply of clothing. Culver City is a better place for residents when all people thrive. Thank you for your service.

REVISED #2

Kalia Lowitz, the City of Culver City honors you for your contributions to equity and human relations. As a girl scout, you planned and implemented a clothing drive out of a desire to ensure that people in need of clothing, such as those served by Culver Closet, local centers and shelters, had a supply of clothing. You also led a campaign to raise funds for a Senior Class trip to improve the mental health and well-being of your classmates after the recent loss of a classmate and the pandemic. Culver City is a better place for residents when all people thrive. Thank you for your service

Individual –

Dr. Jo Tavares Reager - West Los Angeles College Professor

ORIGINAL

The City of Culver City honors Dr. Jo Tavares Reager for your contributions to equity and human relations. Through your work at increasing the understanding of climate change and environmental issues, across a diverse audience, and as they impact social equity and justice, demonstrates a commitment at improving the lives of all people. Your work makes Culver City a better place to learn and thrive.

EDITED

Dr. Jo Tavares Reager, the City of Culver City honors you for your contributions to equity and human relations. As director of the Climate Change Education Center at West Los Angeles College, you are increasing students' understanding of climate change and environmental issues, particularly as they impact social equity and justice. Through your efforts you are making Culver City a better place to learn and thrive.

Executive Director of the non- profit organization

Jane Borochoff – Westside Regional Center

Original:

The City of Culver City honors Jane Borochoff, the Executive Director of the non-profit organization Westside Regional Center (WRC) for her contributions to equity and human relations. Jane Borochoff has embodied inclusiveness and altruism through her work of providing support to people of all ages with developmental disabilities in a person-centered and culturally responsive ways. Through her service at WRC Jane Borochoff has made Culver City a better place for all people to live.

Revised #1

The City of Culver City honors Jane Borochoff, Executive Director of the non-profit organization Westside Regional Center, for her contributions to equity and human relations. You have embodied inclusiveness and altruism through your work providing support to people of all ages with developmental disabilities in person-centered and culturally responsive ways. Through your service at Westside Regional Center, you have made Culver City a better place for all people to live.

Revised #2

Jane Borochoff, the City of Culver City honors you for your contributions to equity and human relations. As Executive Director of the non-profit organization Westside Regional Center, you have embodied inclusiveness and altruism through your work providing support to people of all ages with developmental disabilities in person-centered and culturally responsive ways. Through your service at Westside Regional Center, you have made Culver City a better place for all people to live.

Business Owner -

Fawaz Istwani and Nicholas Conner Jackson Market

Original:

The City of Culver City honors Jackson Market for your contributions to equity and human relations. Through the kindness and compassion shown creating a safe and welcoming space for all faiths and backgrounds, your courageous advocacy for human rights including support for Palestinians, your steadfast support for underserved communities, by hosting interfaith gatherings and nightly Ramadan meals to organizing toy drives and sheltering wildfire victims has embodied inclusiveness and altruism, greatly improving the lives of families. Culver City is a better place for residents when all people thrive.

Revised:

Mr. Fawaz Istwani and Mr. Nicholas Conner, the City of Culver City honors Jackson Market for your contributions to equity and human relations. Through your kindness and compassion in creating a safe and welcoming space for people of all faiths and backgrounds, your courageous advocacy for human rights, including support for Palestinians, and your steadfast support for underserved communities, you have embodied inclusiveness and altruism, greatly improving the lives of individuals and families. Culver City is a better place for residents when all people thrive.