Joint Public Comment - Items NOT on the Agenda

Mayor O'Brien invited public comment.

T'Ana Allen, Deputy City Clerk, read the City Council statement regarding hate speech.

The following members of the public addressed the City Council:

Maria Beg was called to speak but was not present in person or online.

Emily Dibiny read a statement on behalf of her friend Alice in opposition to a proposed resolution that is not about peace or using funds wisely, but instead is about avoiding a call for a ceasefire and wanting to stop hearing about Gaza in Council meetings; discussed two explicit stances on international conflicts taken by the City Council for Israeli and Ukrainian victims; proposing that conversations happen at the federal level; the October 23 resolution standing in solidarity with genocide; lack of clean water in Gaza; children going blind from lack of nutrition; child amputees; City Council prioritization of a few Zionists rather than saying that the maiming and killing of innocent children should stop; racism and hypocrisy; and she asked the City Council to vote no on the resolution and to agendize a ceasefire.

T'Ana Allen, Deputy City Clerk, pointed out that the previous comment related to Item A-3, and she reminded speakers that comment was being taken for Items NOT On the Agenda.

Mariah Fontijn, Culver City Residents for Peace, discussed blockage of all humanitarian aid to Gaza since March 2; starving people while they are being bombed; malnutrition and dehydration; the resolution passed on October 23 condemning the October 7 attacks; she questioned why Culver City could not do the same for the children of Gaza; noted the refusal of the City to even allow discussion of a ceasefire resolution; clarity on whose lives the City values with time, effort, and resources; symbolism; the need to stand for all constituents; and she noted that with every delay, more people die.

Jeff Schwartz discussed the proposition that Council Members who are Fox Hills residents should not vote on the Fox Hills Specific Plan; lack of representation for decades; the silencing of elected officials; the number of renters and People of Color in Fox Hills; the history of exclusion for Fox Hills; the fact that Council Member Vera has not been prevented from voting on items that relate to CCPD (Culver City Police Department) even though his daughter is a police officer, or on regulations and taxes that affect his numerous properties and businesses; the vote of Council Member Vera against Hero Pay for grocery workers despite having inherited Sorrento Market; Council Member Vera's attempts to shut down the housing registry while having not registered any of his rental properties; lack of recognition of a conflict of interest by the City Attorney; lack of hesitation by Mayor O'Brien to vote on matters relating to Michael Hackman's properties even though Mr. Hackman personally spent over $600,000 to elect him; consistent application of impossible standards for progressives while covering for conservatives by the City Attorney; implicit bias; ideology; invisibility of the world view of the dominant class because it passes for common sense; and he asked Culver City to do better.

Huong Nghiem-Eilbeck discussed May as Asian American, Native Hawaiian, and Pacific Islander Heritage Month; concern that commemoration of the fall of Saigon is characterized as liberation or reunification day; the 200,000 Vietnamese sent to reeducation camps; celebration of contributions of Asian Americans; honoring icons; a recent Asian Gala for Local Heroes; the inability to ignore the current moment; the humanitarian crisis in Gaza; understanding what it means to ensure violence and injustice; and the need for cultural recognition to go hand in hand with a commitment to justice both locally and globally.

Art Nomura provided background on himself; discussed population growth in the world; climate change; acting as guardians of the planet; bicycling, walking, and use of public transportation as a way to reduce pollution, alleviate congestion; embracing the joy of a car-free lifestyle; and he wished everyone a Happy National Bike Month.

Ronald Davis wanted to see Culver City condemn the arrest of hundreds of student protestors at USC and UCLA last year; discussed ongoing activity throughout the Los Angeles area to protest fascism and genocide; concern with ongoing silence while student protesters are being denied free speech; growing anti-transgender hysteria; attempts to demean people for defending their transgender rights, just as people are being dehumanized daily in Gaza; he felt that responsible City leaders should take action; and he proposed holding open forums to allow student protestors to be heard, and to discuss the issue of transgender hatred as part of the campaign against hatred.

Sebastien Cornic spoke on behalf of Café Vida, 33 Taps, Sake House, Meet in Paris, Naldo Italian, and S&W Country Diners in opposition to the recent waste collection cost increase proposed under SB1383 compliance; noted their support of California's sustainability goals and the intent to reduce landfill waste; discussed concerns with the abrupt shift in cost structure; the significant financial burden on small businesses; lack of a phase-in period or options for scaling the service to better fit actual output; and he requested that the City Council agendaize consideration of a sliding scale or subsidy for small long-standing local businesses being hit hardest, and that the City provide detailed volume data that justifies the charges and a reassessment of actual waste levels including possible shared bins with neighboring businesses.

Council Member Vera received City Council consensus from Mayor O'Brien, Vice Mayor Puza, and Council Member Fish to look into providing relief for small business owners.

James Richardson echoed many sentiments expressed; asked what justice and peace meant to the City Council; discussed an opportunity to start talking as a community about the Martin B. Retting gun building on Washington Boulevard; interconnected issues beyond race and poverty and what is going on between race and religion; the need for tangible movement; and he did not think things were as bad as they seem.

Mayor O'Brien noted that the gun store had been discussed several weeks ago and an RFP (Request for Proposals) had been issued.

Ashraf Hawari was called to speak but was not present online or in person.

Dakota O'Hara discussed being asked to take down their slacklines and hammocks at Carlson Park; research on City statutes defining the rules for park usage; vague language in the Culver City Municipal Code; the California Supreme Court determination of liability; California Civil Code 831.7 Section A; recreational activities on public or private lands; the Assumption of Risk Doctrine; proof of negligence in maintaining the land; he asked that the City update the Municipal Code to reflect the Supreme Court rulings and work to implement common sense guidelines; and he discussed commitment to fostering diverse activities in public parks.

Ken Palmer expressed curiosity as to what other community members were saying; asked whether letters sent to the City Council could be made available for review before the meetings; discussed Jubilo Village; support for affordable housing; concern that no future Council Members would have funds or vouchers to promote affordable housing projects; he suggested that Culver City stick with helping other developing projects rather than helping a project that the City does not and will not own that has uncertainty as to what will happen to it after 30 years; and he wanted to see questions answered before the project was approved.

Erin McCarthy, 33 Taps, spoke on behalf of the owner expressing appreciation for City Council support for looking into SB1383; discussed other things to consider such as allowing for a grace period or transitional pricing structure to help businesses adapt without facing immediate financial strain; ensuring that all contracts are thoroughly negotiated and structured with long-term value in mind; local businesses recovering from the pandemic and facing rising costs; and the need to work together to push back against unsustainable cost increases wherever possible.

Karim Sahli echoed comments made by Jeff Schwartz regarding conflicts of interest; discussed safety; lack of crime resulting from opening the Jackson Gate; proposed bike lanes and transit; financial distress; and he asked the City Manager to stop spending money on security for City Council meetings noting that police officers were already present and efficient.

Discussion ensued between staff and Council Members regarding recommendations; concern with statements alleging lack of integrity; evaluation of issues; advice given and help guiding Council Members through the rules to make their decisions about recusal; potential legal conflicts; encouragement of Council Members to seek FPPC (Fair Political Practices Commission) advice; objective evaluation; the ultimate decision of individual Council Members as to whether to participate or to recuse themselves; lack of immunity for a Council Member if they have received advice from the City Attorney's Office and a conflict arises; immunity granted if advice is received from the FPPC; the Public Generally Rule; privileged discussions between the City Attorney's Office and Council Members; careful analysis of complex issues applied objectively across the board; and Council Member misunderstanding of their ability to make the choice to participate if advised against it by the City Attorney's Office.
