Member Scott discussed her experiences allowing several of her tenants to rent-out their extra bedrooms for up to two weeks; various websites that cater to short-term rentals; a website that caters to short-term rentals in Culver City; examples of Culver City listings on different websites; procedures for short-term rentals; she indicated that she had rented out her spare room for short periods of time in the past; discussed actual numbers of short-term rentals in the City; determining how the critical the problem is; enforcement; actions of the City of Los Angeles; limitations on the number of nights allowable to rent; whether the owner lives in the unit being rented; and requirements in other cities that short-term rentals be registered.

Additional discussion ensued between staff and Board Members regarding different ways to measure the actual number of short-term rentals in Culver City, and volunteers to serve on the Task Force.

Discussion ensued between staff and Board Members regarding individual research on the short-term rental issue; concern with those that use rental units for Airbnbs without permission from the landlord; use of facilities and amenities; holding the tenant responsible for the person subletting; whether subletting is a violation of a lease; subletting for filming; whether the City can allow tenants' rights that go beyond a lease; tenant screening; allowing random, unauthorized people into the unit; vetting through Airbnb; establishing the task force to create restrictions as there is currently nothing in place; hazards associated with posting properties for short-term rental online; the prohibition of commercial activities in residential areas; enforcement; garage sales; permitting; citations; and Board Members interested in serving as alternate representative.
